

Have 2 pictures, a text box that will display the team member's information, which defaults to "Click on a team member to learn more!" Once a photo is clicked, the default text changes to that person's information using an array. I will add a class of hidden to the h3 that is the instructions when the function that calls in the info runs.

As an extra I'd like the picture to change!

I will do this by making the image a variable and then changing the source!